The twelve-million weighed 270 tons and would fill nine box cars. Piled singly the books would reach 11 miles in the air, and their 144 million pages would form a ribbon more than 8 1/2 inches wide stretching five times across Canada.

WELL KNOWN MINE MAN IS VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

A bad fatality occurred in the Bellevue mine of the West Canadian Collieries on Tuesday evening of this week, in which James Radford, one of the best and most popularly known of Pass mining men, was the victim.

It appears that Mr. Radford, in the course of duties as pitboss, was coming out of the workings on a trip of cars moved by a compressed-air motor, which it is presumed jumped the track and the pitboss was caught between the first car and the motor, where he was fatally crushed. T. Sterba, the motor driver, was slightly injured.

An inquest was ordered, and was held before Coroner MacPherson last evening, with a verdict of accidental death being returned.

Mr. Radford had been an employee of the West Canadian Collieries for slightly over thirty years. He was born in England sixty-four years ago, and came to Nova Scotia some forty years ago, later moving west. During his time in the Pass he made numerous friends. He was largely instrumental in the formation of what is now the Bellevue and District Horticultural and Industrial Society and for some years was its very faithful and efficient secretary. He also took a leading part in curling activities and First Aid work, and was a charter member of Bellevue Lodge of the I.O.O.F.

Surviving are his wife, three sons and four daughters. The sons are: James, fire boss at Greenhill mine, Blairmore; Samuel with the Navy, Fred with the Air Force, and daughters, Mrs. T. Bradley, of Winnipeg; Beatrice at home, Jessie in Winnipeg and Mrs. Robert Shevels in Bellevue.

Funeral will take place on Sunday at 1 p.m., with services held at the United church. The remains will be laid to rest in the Bellevue cemetery.

G. E. Green, of Bellevue, has joined the army.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Thompson have returned from a holiday sojourn through B.C. to the coast.

The best news of the war so far is that of the complete destruction of a Japanese convoy heading for New Guinea, taking with them almost 15,000 Jap troops.

The Ladies' Aid of the Blairmore United Church will hold their annual Easter Tea and Sale of Home Cooking in the auditorium on Saturday, April 24, from 3 to 6 p.m. Everybody welcome. Please keep this date in mind.

REPORT SIXTY-FIVE FATAL ACCIDENTS IN ALBERTA

Alberta had sixty-five fatal motor vehicle accidents in 1942, or three less than the previous year, according to official figures received by the Alberta Motor Association from provincial authorities.

Among the causes of these accidents were excessive speed, level railway crossings, intoxication, trying to pass cars on hills and curves, careless and negligent driving, colliding with or running into street cars, motor cyclists, children running across city or roadway.

Deaths in some accidents resulted after the car had skidded on wet, icy or slippery roads or in loose gravel. The fact that there were sixty-five fatalities in motor accidents in the province last year emphasizes the need of greater regard to safety measures and principles, according to officials of the motor association. In some of the accidents, the victims were pedestrians.

The need of greater pedestrian education has been emphasized by the A.M.A.

to Michel and back. The distance in each case about 50 miles.

One Bright Spot in the World

Red Cross food parcels arrive at a German prison camp "somewhere in Europe." The Canadian Red Cross has sent more than two million such food parcels to Canadian and British prisoners of war in enemy camps in Germany, Occupied France, Italy and Africa since the outbreak of war. Present output is 100,000 each week from five Red Cross packing depots in Canada.

The Red Cross

DURING THE FIRST THREE WEEKS of March a national appeal for funds is being made by the Canadian Red Cross Society. The Society is asking for $100,000, and if this objective is to be reached, the campaign must receive whole-hearted support in all parts of the Dominion. The finances of the society are based entirely on voluntary subscription, and the need for the $100,000, which is now being sought is urgent, for the many humanitarian services which are now being maintained. Mr. Jackson Dods, chairman of the Central Committee of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and Mr. Justice P. H. Gordon, chairman of the national executive, have issued the following statement concerning the appeal for funds: "The Red Cross is an international organization, and under the Conventions of Geneva is required to obtain its support by voluntary subscriptions to preserve its rights, privileges and immunities guaranteed under international law. No belligerent government may finance a Red Cross Society; to do so would destroy the international status of the society and even wipe out its immunity under fire."

Demands Heavy At This Time

The present campaign for funds is being made with the full co-operation of the Government, to avoid conflict with the plans of the National War Finance Committee. The money is to be used to carry on the activities of the Red Cross Society on the home front, as well as to maintain its many wartime obligations. Needless to say, the demands upon the Society are great at this time and it is most urgent that its financial needs be supplied in full. The budget for the year commencing April 1, 1943, is for $1,650,000. Of this $1,650,000 is now at hand. One of the greatest services given by the Society in time of war is the supplying of food parcels to Canadian, British, and Empire prisoners of war in Germany and the Far East. Of the total budget, $5,500,000, or about 47%, is designated for this very important work. Another valuable wartime work carried on by the Red Cross, is the Blood Donor Service by which blood is made available for the men of the armed forces of Canada.

Society Serves In Many Ways

The wide scope of the service rendered to humanity by the Red Cross both in peace and war is well known. The International Red Cross, of which the Canadian Society is a branch, was founded on February 8, 1863, just eighty years ago. It was organized by a group of five men in Geneva, Switzerland, and this group later became the first International Red Cross Committee. Jean Henri Dunant, a citizen and philanthropist of Geneva, was said to be the founder. The activities of the organization were expanded greatly during the first Great War, and the now well-known Central Information Bureau for Prisoners of War was set up. The main purpose of this bureau is to act as an intermediary between prisoners of war, or interned civilians and their families and friends. It was immediately set up again at the beginning of the present war, and Canadians who have friends or relatives who are prisoners or internees in enemy countries know the great service which the Society renders in this connection. For this, and the many other acts of mercy which the Red Cross performs in these troubled times, we owe a debt which we can pay in part by responding generously to the present appeal for funds.

ODD FACTS ABOUT FOOD

Science has found by investigation that a good many of the beliefs cherished by a lot of people regarding food are far from being correct. There is, for example, the notion that the more water is consumed, the more water and therefore does not leave any significant waste for the intestines. As a matter of fact, milk leaves a great amount of residue—much more than that left by meat or eggs.

Dr. James S. McLeod, U.S. authority, has summarized the investigations of scores of scientists who have experimented with various types of food. It has been discovered that:

Meat is the most satiating food in that it calls forth the greatest activity on the part of the stomach.

Milk ranks next to meat. Cooked eggs are more satisfying than raw eggs; the latter leave the stomach rapidly and are not easily digested.

Bread, especially if toasted, has poor appetite-satisfying qualities. Potatoes are only a little higher. Both become more satisfying if a little butter is used with them, which is poor consolation in these days of rationing. Green vegetables are low in satisfying qualities, though high in vitamin content.

If eggs are eaten raw, beat them in order to get full value. Plain raw egg white apparently runs through the system so rapidly that it is hardly digested at all.

Cooking loosens the connective tissue of meat so that the digestive juices reach it more readily. Cooking causes the starch cells of vegetables to burst and become accessible to digestive fluids.

Foods that cause indigestion because of individual sensitivities are, in relative order according to one test involving 600 people: onions, milk, apples, cabbage, chocolate, radishes, tomatoes, cucumbers, eggs, and fats. Milk is more easily digested when mixed with other foods; take a cracker with your milk.

Hot fresh breads were found to be just as digestible as cold if they are chewed thoroughly and eaten properly light in the order named.

May Have Method

Maryland Professor Thinks He Can Make Sea Water Drinkable

One of the greatest terrors of being shipwrecked—having water, being everywhere and not a drop to drink—is on the way to being overcome by naval medical research.

Dr. A. C. Ivy, of Northwestern University, director of research at the United States navy's new medical research institute at Bethesda, Md., said studies there on the problem of making salt water fit to drink by persons cast adrift in the open sea have progressed to a point that "it think it's hopeful—absolutely."

Although he could not disclose details of the methods under study, Dr. Ivy said 10 different processes are being tested—either mechanical, chemical, electrical, or heat-emulating.

DOING GOOD WORK

More than 600 blind Britons have been given posts in war industries in recent weeks. A firm of aero-engine builders has found blind workers possess great powers of concentration and a delicate sense of touch.

The first known blood transfusion was given to Pope Innocent VIII in 1492.

A Changeable Date

Why Easter Sometimes Comes Very Late In April

Good Friday this year falls on April 23, which, according to Dr. H. R. Kingston, head of the department of mathematics and astronomy at the University of Western Ontario, is within a day of the latest date on which it can come on the present calendar. Easter Sunday, by which the Good Friday date is calculated, explained by Dr. Kingston, is the first Sunday after the first full moon following the vernal equinox (the day when the sun crosses the equator, marking the first day of spring) may occur on either March 21 or 22. When spring begins on the latter date, the first full moon following may occur as late as April 20. Should this date come on a Monday, then six days must elapse until Easter Sunday. Good Friday would then fall on April 24.

HARD ON TIRES

Figures show that macadam, tar and gravel roads, in the order named, cause the greatest wear and tear on automobile tires. Concrete roads cause the least wear and cut down on fuel consumption at the same time.

SWINE DISEASES

Enteritis, An Inflammation Of The Intestines The Cause Of

Heavy Losses

This is the third of a series of six articles by Dr. L. Miller, V.M., D.V.M., dealing with the more prevalent hog diseases. The following articles will appear in the following order: Enteritis, Necrotic Enteritis, Pig Pellagra, Pig Diseases: Mange and Diarrhoea.

Enteritis is an inflammation of the intestine and is the cause of heavy losses in young swine. The symptoms are those of severe diarrhoea followed by rapid loss of weight, and the severe form, death in from three to ten days. As there are several different forms of enteritis we will discuss them separately.

Simple Scours: This condition is usually observed in weanling pigs and the cause can generally be traced to errors in diet. Over-feeding on coarse feed of poor quality, or excessive amounts of concentrate is the common cause. Symptoms are those of diarrhoea, lack of appetite and loss of weight.

Treatment: Correct the diet, giving milk and a limited amount of solid food. The water should be added to the feed, and small quantities of either formalin or blue stone to the drinking water will usually correct this form of scour.

A desatopful of formalin or half a teaspoonful of blue stone to a gallon of water can be used.

Necrotic Enteritis: Necrotic Enteritis is an infectious disease affecting pigs from six weeks to four months of age. It is caused by a virus infection and spreads rapidly in a herd of young swine. This disease usually makes its appearance in late spring or early summer, on premises where sanitation has been neglected.

The onset of the disease is sudden and a number of pigs will show symptoms about the same time. The first sign is the passing of black liquid feces is the most common symptom. High fever, weakness, and loss of appetite are also noticed, and in this form death may occur in thirty-six to forty-eight hours. In the chronic form there is a persistent diarrhoea and the hair coat becomes rough and dry. Animals are usually found dead, at a gradual tucking up of the abdomen and general emaciation.

Treatment: Post mortem reveals an inflamed condition of the large intestine. The walls of the intestine are thickened and the lining of the bowel is often covered with a cheese-like material under which areas of dead tissue and ulceration may be found.

Treatment: A general clean-up of the premises should be carried out. Pigs should be cleaned if possible, supply a balanced ration of soft easily digested food. Recently a form of treatment has been used with some success in this disease. It is called the Salt Treatment and is given as follows: Animals are given all the buttermilk they can drink three times a day, with three and a half pounds of salt added to fifteen gallons of buttermilk. This treatment is repeated daily for five days. For the next three days nothing but plain buttermilk is given. The salt treatment is again repeated for an additional four days. At the end of this time some solid food may be added. If this treatment is used it is necessary to have a plentiful supply of drinking water within twenty feet of these pigs, if bad results are to be avoided. If buttermilk is not available, whole oats soaked in salt solution can be used in the same way as above treatment.

Pig Pellagra: A disease closely resembling Necrotic Enteritis is called pig pellagra. The symptoms and post mortem findings are similar to the chronic form of Necrotic Enteritis. The cause of Swine Pellagra is a vitamin B deficiency. Its appearance is slow and gradual, quite in contrast to the infectious type of Enteritis, where the onset is sudden and severe. Animals receiving tankage for their ration rarely suffer from this disease.

Symptoms: Pig Pellagra has a slow, gradual onset. There is loss of weight, lack of appetite, accompanied by watery diarrhoea. The hair becomes dry and a scaly inflammation of the skin is usually noticed about the ears and parts of the face. Animals lose weight and gradually become emaciated.

Treatment: Treatment in the early stages consists of making up the lack of vitamin B in the diet, and when this is done prompt improvement usually takes place. When available, fresh raw liver is the best remedy. A half pound a day, finely ground and well mixed with the grain, has proven valuable in the treatment of this disease. Dried brewers' yeast given in doses of three ounces daily, mixed with the feed, is a good substitute if liver cannot be obtained.

The Big Crop

Provinces Produced Greatest Crop In 1942

Provinces of Canada produced the greatest crop of all time in 1942—a total of 1,343,000,000 bushels.

The Winnipeg Free Press agricultural and business review for the past year tells us:

Of this 565,000,000 bushels were wheat.

That leaves 778,000,000 bushels of coarse grains and flax produced in 1942—enough to produce 38,000,000 two hundred pound hogs against a production of only 8,000,000 asked for the whole of Canada in 1943.

Those persons who are so fond of telling us that the Western farmer will produce wheat and nothing else should go and bury their heads in the sand—Lethbridge Herald.

Has Wide Experience

Group Captain Ashton Now In Charge Of No. 2 Training Command

At Winnipeg

Group Captain A. J. Ashton, former Commanding Officer of the Patricia Bay Air Station, Victoria, B.C., has taken over the position of officer in charge administration of No. 2 Training Command, Winnipeg.

Born in Wiltshire, England, Group Captain Ashton came to Canada as a young man in 1911. Following the last war, he became attached to the Canadian Air Board in 1920 and served with the Canadian Air Force in 1921, continuing with the R.C.A.F. when it was formed in 1924. He was engaged in various flying duties, including an aerial survey which was conducted over the Hudson Straits in 1927 and 1928. He flew in Northern Manitoba in the following year and in 1931 was on exchange to the Royal Air Force where he served with the Coastal Command. He took part in an aerial survey of Newfoundland in 1930, and just before the war was in charge of a flying boat squadron in Vancouver.

At the outbreak of hostilities, he was placed in charge of the Ottawa Air Station at Cockfield and later took command of the Jericho Beach Station at Vancouver. Following the great expansion of the Air Training Plan he was made Commanding Officer of No. 2 Bombing and Gunnery School at Mossbank, Saskatchewan, from which post he went to Patricia Bay, where he was in command before coming to Winnipeg.

Group Captain Ashton served in the last war, enlisting in August 1914, and proceeding overseas with the 11th Battalion. ## German Morale Hits The Lowest Level Of The War

Stockholm.—German morale has hit the lowest level of the war, and it is questionable whether Hitler can lift it out of the depths as he has in the past with military victories.

People who have recently been in Germany, the Nazi press and Swedish newspapers confirm this view. Perhaps especially significant are reports of how heavily the terror of bombings is hitting the German people, and how wounded soldiers describe the "hell" on the eastern front and express hope they won't have to go back.

There is shaken confidence in Hitler as a soldier-genius, especially among the soldiers, as a result of military defeats.

Although morale is bad, no crack-up should be expected before a decisive military defeat becomes plain to every German. In this connection it must be remembered always that the Nazis disarmed the Germans and wiped out the oppositional political leadership so effectively that there are no signs of counter-organization in strength.

Himmler, Hitler's watchdog, is taking no chances. A press campaign to draw recruits for his private army intended mainly for use during internal crises has been running for weeks. He is releasing police and SS troops from clerical and other station work for the field by enrolling women.

He sealed many loopholes in the police network by establishing the "Aidwacht" of "several hundred thousands" strong for security of the homeland. This service is obligatory in addition to regular work, principally for men who fought in the last war and now untrained for military service.

For years the SS has been quietly taking over strategically located stores and apartments for use as small arsenals and strongpoints in case of trouble.

How hard the war has struck German homes is openly described by the paper, Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung. Many Germans evacuated from bombed districts were described as "too shaken to give a coherent picture of what happens during a heavy raid."

The effects, however, are reflected in advertisements now appearing regularly in west German newspapers offering to exchange homes in Düsseldorf, Bremen, Kiel, Essen, Hannover, Cologne and other hard-hit cities for homes in middle or southern Germany or in small towns with good communications to the big cities. Cities such as Berlin and Vienna are overcrowded.

The housing shortage in Vienna, the Voelkischer Beobachter disclosed, is acute, with 75,000 families seeking homes, 13,000 of them urgently. Wounded soldiers spread uneasiness at home by telling as a typical instance of a company twice reinforced with 100 men yet reduced to 18 men when it left the Russian fighting area.

Last April's reduction in food rations is beginning to have effects on health. The people are susceptible to colds and illness, and are constantly tired, nervous and irritable.

Meanwhile war crimes—sabotage, black marketing, blackout thefts and burglaries, and disregard of war regulations—are steadily increasing.

MAKES PREDICTION

Sir Gerald Campbell Says Germany May Sink To Communism
San Francisco.—Sir Gerald Campbell, British minister to U.S., told the Commonwealth club that he would not be surprised "if Germany sank to Communism after the war and Russia became worried about Communism in Europe."

"Had not Germany gone to war twice," he said, "she might have led the world in production. Russia is a great producing country. She will have Europe and Asia as markets for her production."

REPORT DENIED

Berlin Radio Says Hitler Not Giving Up Army Command
New York.—Runners that Hitler is preparing to relinquish command of the German armed forces to a fighting general drew a curt denial from the Berlin radio.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press here, quoted "competent military quarters" as declaring that reports "spread abroad" concerning the appointment of a new commander for the eastern front "are devoid of foundation."

PREFERS ACTION

Flying Officer Beurling Wants To Get Back To Job
Montreal.—Canada's most decorated air hero, Flying Officer George "Buss" Beurling, has started his 5,000-mile coast-to-coast trip around Canada's air training schools.

But the top-ranking Canadian air ace, who has 29 enemy planes to his credit, doesn't like the job he's been assigned to—he would sooner be shooting down more enemy planes.

"Any front will do," he said. "Tunisia, Russia or my old field over Malta."

Beurling says that after his tour of training centres, he will apply for a fortnight's leave and ask that he be returned to overseas duty.

Beurling began his tour with a visit to the St. Hubert service flying training school.

SHORTAGE OF LUMBER

Ban On Construction To Continue In British Columbia
Vancouver.—At least several months more delays before the timber controller lifts a ban on new construction by private individuals or companies in British Columbia, D. D. Rosenberg, assistant timber controller, said, and the prohibition may be in effect "for the duration."

An unprecedented shortage of lumber caused by the manpower shortage and weather which tied up production necessitated the ban on private building, which was announced recently. Only construction related to the war effort may be commenced until further notice.

A British Port.—Save some laurels for the Porpoise, the Royal Navy's first submarine tanker, when it comes to distributing honors for the heroic defense of Malta, Britain's George Cross island.

For without the Porpoise the Royal Air Force and deep-draft pilots like P.O. George (Screwball) Beurling of Verdun, Que., "Hero of Malta," wouldn't have been able to stem vicious Axis air onslaught during the garrison's blackest hour.

When bombing reached a peak of intensity the amount of gasoline and ammunition supplies getting through to the heroic defenders was practically negligible.

But the Porpoise, a 2,000-ton vessel designed for mine-laying and torpedo attack, came to the rescue in the nick of time, the admiral revealed when the submarine arrived here after completing 14 months' service in the Mediterranean. She was hurriedly converted into a "hidden merchantman" and torpedo and mine racks were loaded with vital war materials. Then with additional supplies towed in a small satellite craft she cracked the Axis blockade.

"An unspectacular job," commented Lt. W. A. Benington as he doctored his ship.

He didn't mention the thrill of destroying a large tanker and an armed vessel as well as surviving nearly 100 depth charges. Others, however, were more than anxious to describe those battle actions.

During one attack the Porpoise survived 27 depth charges, described by Sub Lt. T. C. M. Thurlow as "too close and no fault of ours."

"We were only 40 feet down when there was a crack which was followed by two more mighty bangs," he related. "The whole ship lurched and it felt just like going over a big bump in a road in a truck travelling at high speed."

"Both the main depth gauges in the control rooms were knocked out of action. There was a slight leak forward and the listening gear was also temporarily buckled. The operator, however, soon got his set working again and back came the instant reports: 'Got definite contact'... 'Speeding up'... 'Coming in to attack'... 'Lost contact'... We knew then that the enemy was passing overhead, and almost at once came the expected thumps. We exchanged weak smiles and waited."

"By this time the batteries were gasping badly, but perhaps the worst moments were near the end when the enemy passed overhead three times without dropping anything."

"It was just like waiting for the other boot to drop... Either he had run out of charges or else he thought we were sunk. As the commander had left his duffle coat on the bridge when he scrambled below, they may have picked that up as evidence."

A ROUTINE JOB

Way Naval Diver Described His Heroic Action At Halifax

Ottawa.—Naval headquarters disclosed that P.O. John Brown, 22-year-old naval diver from Ingersoll, Ont., averted the threat of a serious explosion in Halifax harbor by recovering from the sea bottom an accidentally released depth charge.

Brown was awarded the British Empire Medal for his act. The depth charge threatened to blast nearby piers and shipping when it rolled from the stern of a converted United States destroyer. It was loaded with several hundred pounds of high explosive, primed and equipped with detonator and delicate firing mechanism to set it off.

"I landed on a knoll," said Brown, describing his descent. "I could make out the depth charge lying half on its side a few feet away. I went over to it and made a line fast to it. Then I stood by and made a signal to the Americans to pull it up." Brown, who received the excited congratulations of American officers and men, described it as "a routine job."

TELEVISION COMING

Toronto.—J. J. Gillin, Jr., of Omaha, Neb., predicted before the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, in annual convention here, that television broadcasting will become established at the end of the war, with television in color being provided a short time afterwards.

He said he had been "informed on good authority by television experts that color television is in the laboratory now and will be brought out when it is practical and feasible."

Says Alaska Is To Be Used For Attack On Japan

New York.—The Tokyo radio broadcast a warning to the Japanese people by a high imperial headquarters official that the United States is planning "a mortal attack upon the mainland of Japan" and that it would come from the north.

Col. Nakao Yahagi, chief of the Japanese army press section, declared in a speech recorded by the federal communications commission that Alaska is to be "the headquarters for attacks against Japan."

He cited the "almost daily bombings" of Japanese forces in the Aleutians by United States planes, the building of "17 new air fields" in China and "preparations" for direct telephone connections between Alaska and China.

He described the air field construction and telephone work as "attempted reinforcement of airplanes to the continent from Alaska."

(The Chungking radio announced some time ago that radio-telephone facilities were being constructed for communication between China and the United States.)

"According to the recently announced Roosevelt message," Yahagi warned, "America is preparing to make the year 1943 a year of final battles of the decisive war."

This spokesman, the F.C.C. reported, pointed out the United States was stressing "rapid construction of unshakable aircraft carriers—that is, land bases."

He asserted, according to the Tokyo broadcast, that the Allies now have 300 planes in China.

Yahagi also foresaw the possibility that Midway Island also might be used as a base for an aerial assault on Tokyo, the broadcast said. He continued: "It appears they (Allies) are going to make Dutch Harbor and Hawaii into strongholds and move forward with unity of the respective forces."

Beveridge Plan May Be Delayed Until After War

London.—Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, indicated that the British government might have to wait until after the war to act on the Beveridge social security plan.

He was answering growing Labor party demands for immediate legislation embodying its recommendations.

The cost of putting into effect the proposal for providing a higher standard of living for all subjects must be considered along with the uncertain length of the war, he told members of commons.

He hinted that even heavier taxation would result from passage of security legislation at this time, and that the government wanted to spare the "middle class" that additional burden.

Labor members held a secret meeting earlier to consider a resolution disapproving the government's attitude.

"Be as brave as you are asking the soldiers to be in battle," Laborite George Buchanan said. "If you are, this scheme will not be hindered by talk about expense."

Wood agreed that finance "shouldn't be our master rather than our servant," but added that the servant should not be used "so that he breaks or collapses in the source of his work."

Wood said that he shared the view that "economic recovery ought to be possible 'within a reasonable period' but added that 'we may be only in the middle of this war and the cost of the war still is increasing.'"

Wood denied that the government was seeking to retard the Beveridge proposals.

He disclosed that the minister of health and the secretary for Scotland immediately would begin negotiations with the medical profession along the lines of the report but said that negotiations and setting up a new system of medical services will take considerable time.

WARTIME HUMOR

The Wartime Milk Control Board of England has its occasions to laugh, in spite of the grimness of war and falling bombs. Here are a few extracts taken from actual letters sent in to the milk board by English mothers:

Please send me a form for supply of milk for having children at reduced prices.

I posted the form by mistake before my child was filled up properly.

I did intend coming to the milk office today, but have had 15 children this morning.

I have one child two years old and looking forward to an increase in November, hoping this meets with your approval.

I am glad to report that my husband who was reported missing is now dead.

Sir: I am forwarding our marriage certificate and two children, one of which is a mistake as you will see.

Unless I can get my husband's pay I will be forced to lead an immortal life.

You have changed my boy into a little girl. Will this make any difference?

Please send my money as I have fallen into errors with my landlord.

I have no children as my husband is a bus driver and works day and night.

In accordance with your instructions I have given birth to twins in the enclosed envelope.

Milk is wanted for my baby and the father is unable to supply it.

FUNERAL ETIQUETTE ONE HUNDRED AND SIX YEARS AGO

At a meeting held at Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, on May 10th, 1837, the following was agreed to:

Every person who shall hereafter be requested to attend a funeral, either as a mourner or pallbearer, shall provide himself, at his own expense, with a crepe hatband and gloves. No other appendage shall be used on such occasions, it being the sense of the meeting that the use of scarfs by mourners should be discontinued.

Any minister of the Gospel or physician, required to attend any funeral, shall provide himself with hatbands and scarfs at his own expense.

The use of refreshments of any kind shall henceforth be discontinued, and the procession shall be required to return from the grave to the door of deceased's residence, there to disperse.

WHY SHOULD THEY?

Provincial governments are asking the federal government what they are going to do about making up the losses in liquor profits occasioned by the curtailment of sales. They have about as much right to ask it as the newspapers have to ask the government to make up for the loss in revenue caused by the prohibition of all liquor advertising. —MacLeod Gazette.

OBSERVATIONS ON GAME LIFE

Now that the big game hunting season has drawn to a close, and I have had a wonderful opportunity of witnessing big game hunters returning from the chase with their trophies, it occurs to me that this time is propitious to mention my observations.

First of all I would like to say that the very sportsmanlike gesture made by the Alberta provincial government, in granting free licenses to all those in Alberta who are serving in His Majesty's forces, is a gesture which is thoroughly appreciated by all clean-thinking sportsmen and, as we fully realize the significance of this courtesy, it prompts us to follow suit in entertaining and catering to the pleasure of those who are similarly giving themselves to uphold the honor of this great democratic country.

It is just as important to find a means of giving pleasure to the boys and girls of our armed forces before they actually leave Canada as it is to prove to them on their return that the resources of this great land have been fostered for them while they were away.

Many have joined the armed forces, and many more are anxiously waiting their turn to join and serve. We who are left behind will anxiously await their return. In the meantime, let us conserve for them that which a provident God created and blessed this wonderful country with to be a portion of their heritage.

The memory of those boys who were our hunting partner during peaceful times, and who are now sleeping on the field of battle, will ever be present with us when we take our future hunting trips.

If by tomorrow morn I'm just another soldier slain
Upon life's field of battle, where my friends will die;
Where better men than I in death have lain,
With naught to cover them but God's own sky,

The clay which now gives haven to the soul,
Will fall and crumble when I fail to draw my breath;
My spirit then I trust will reach that heavenly goal,
Which we are taught awaits us after death.

When the carnage rampant on this earthly world is o'er,
And the pick of manhood are all named or slain,
And the battle flags of nations are all furled,
The flesh of those who die may perish, but their souls will rise again.

—Henry Selfox,
Rocky Mountain House.

No less than ten members of the Edmonton city police force have resigned.

"I am quite sure that no member of this House would wish to see prohibition return to Canada."—Fred Anderson, Social Credit member for Calgary.

Tpr. William Duncan, who had been home from Camp Borden on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Duncan, at the Bellevue Inn, left Wednesday on the return trip. He expects to leave very shortly for overseas. During his visit here he took occasion to cruise up towards Michel, Natal and the Elk Valley, where he took occasion to molest some of the river inhabitants.

As a legal and national holiday, Victoria Day has been dropped. National holidays remaining to be observed are Sundays, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Dominion Day (the first Monday in July), Christmas Day, any day appointed by proclamation for a public holiday or a general fast or thanksgiving, and the days following New Year's Day and Christmas Day, when such days respectively fall on Sunday.

A MAN OF MANY PARTS

A man was driving down the road,
A-going fit to bust;
And all the people he had hit
You couldn't see for dust.

Then, going round a dangerous curve,
He crashed against a tree;
And then some village folks he missed
(Because they were at tea).

Came running out to help the man
They thought was in the car—
But one had looked and told the rest:
"He surely ain't in there!"

Said one, "See here—I found his legs—
I wonder where he went."
And then another found an arm
And two ribs badly bent.

Then after many hours of search,
One found his severed head;
And then the village wit remarked:
"He looks as though he's dead."

Well, he was right—that dangerous man
At last had passed away—
But still too many fools are left
Who drive like that each day.—Ex.

C.P.R. FORCES WIN BATTLE OF ELEMENTS

Huge snowdrifts lining the right-of-way from one end of Canada to the other stood as victorious monuments to the company's courageous maintenance forces, train crews and other ranks, who for the better part of a month battled one of the most sustained and severe blizzards that ever played havoc with Canadian transportation. And they kept the lines clear.

The storm attacked the company's transportation facilities with blitz-like fury, piling tons of snow over its vital steel highways, sheathing its telegraph wires with ice to the thickness of a man's wrist, snapping poles, and hurling an icy challenge to Canadian Pacific forces who literally "dared Nature to do its worst."

The situation would have been had enough under normal traffic conditions. The Canadian Pacific, however, was engaged in handling the heaviest volume of traffic in its history—more than double the amount carried by the railway in 1939. This, coupled with limitations on manpower, placed an added burden on the company's resources.

Snow-plows powered by three, sometimes four, powerful locomotives made almost continuous assaults at the mountainous snowdrifts that reached particularly appalling dimensions in Ontario and Quebec where the above scenes were photographed. Other blizzard-borne "greenies" attacked the railway in the form of ice that sheathed engines, coaches, switches and rails; driving snow that reduced visibility to zero, stymied turn-tables, hampered yard operations and even froze coal in the chutes.

Time and again rails would be cleared only to have the track again blocked by the driving snow. With few exceptions the trains were kept moving. Passengers accepted the situation in fine spirit and were full of praise for the company's tireless personnel and their efforts to keep the lines clear.

Above scenes show how the railway's powerful plows bucked the immense drifts and how the snow was loaded onto cars for disposal. Engine crews attend locomotive's ice-sheathed mechanism (lower left) while scene at lower right shows plow emerging victoriously from newly cleared cut.

BARBED WIRE and enemy guards "do not a prison make" for Canadian soldiers captured by the enemy. Their thoughts, winging across the sea, meet Red Cross parcels on their way to them. Last year, the enemy said "pass" to 2,000,000 such parcels. They were packed with 22,000,000 pounds of food and comforts welcomed by men to whom the bare necessities have become luxuries.

But, most of all, to each prisoner every Red Cross parcel is a message from home—a definite assurance that he is not forgotten, a reminder that no captured Canadian soldier is ever marked "off strength" by the Red Cross.

Thirty percent of the money you gave to the Red Cross last year was used to provide parcels for prisoners of war. The money you give now will help to keep up and increase this flow of good cheer and hope to these lonely men.

VOLUNTEER WORKS AS DYNAMITE EXPLODES

While Mrs. Dorothea Horton Calverley worked in a tiny office at the back of a grocery store to get 6,000 new ration books off by mail to distributing centres in the Dawson Creek area, the dynamite blast which caused five lives and razed the town of Dawson Creek occurred in a building twenty yards from where she worked. Mrs. Calverley was miraculously uninjured, but the story is one of the most dramatic of stories of service of a civilian volunteer.

Kneeling to tie up a bundle of 3,000 books, Mrs. Calverley saw a swirl of flames rise from the nearby building, but worked on, not knowing the danger of dynamite stored there. Then came the explosion. The attic ceiling of the little office where she was working came down, dumping stores of groceries into the room. Lights went out, pieces of burning structure fell, starting new fires. Stumbling into the street, Mrs. Calverley found that her husband was seriously injured. When, with a special permit, Mrs. Calverley re-visited the scene, she found the doorway through which she had escaped jammed with a mass of canned goods which had been blasted from the building with the explosion. All records were lost. The ration books for the entire district were gone.

Undaunted, she commenced shipping off new supplies arriving from Edmonton, typing forms and making allotments from memory. The townfolk, led by Canon Hinchcliffe, the Anglican minister, who turned over his study to be used as an office, rallied to help. ## PRAYERS

The majority of the people cannot aspire to such contact of the prayer. Their degree is not yet high enough. The formulation of a need into a thought, a petition that comes with prayer to what is higher and greater than is a beneficent operation to the individual, and is a definite projection in the unobstructed universe. By the fluid universal, who is the vehicle of the transmission of your thought, your prayer must be to consciousness. There is only one universe, but two aspects of one, according to faith and truth, so long as a man seeks truth and keeps his path straight, his own seeking makes it true. Use your mind by your frequency.

Yours in Truth—Alex. Verguene.

An inquest into the fatality was conducted by Coroner Donald MacPherson at Coleman on Monday evening.

In a statement dealing with child welfare and juvenile delinquency, Premier Aberhart last week said the government is favorably inclined to the proposal for Borstal institutions in Western Canada for the rehabilitation of young offenders. Mr. Aberhart quoted from the Dominion report on penal institutions, which was issued some years ago, and cited references to the Alberta system of child placement, in which it was suggested an expansion of this system across the Dominion might be a wise plan to follow. Although nothing has been done by the federal government to implement the report, this government is prepared to co-operate at any time, and already has set up a special committee charged with the duty of investigating the whole field of child welfare and delinquency.

C.P. Air Lines Change Superintendents

W. J. Windrum W. E. Catton W. E. Gilbert Ted Field U. S. Wagner

The vast Mackenzie district of Canadian Pacific Air Lines, based at Edmonton and extending over the Northwest Territories and the Arctic Coast has been split in two for operating purposes and Grant McConachie, general manager of the western district, announced that two veteran northland airmen, W. J. Windrum and Walter E. Gilbert, P.R.C.S., will be superintendents of the divided territory. Bill Windrum will have charge of the Yellowknife district, including territory to Fort Smith, Fort Resolution, Outpost (Jasper), Inuvik, and Yellowknife, Radium and Coppermine, while Walter Gilbert will supervise operations on the Mackenzie district, Edmonton to Fort Smith and Fort Norman, to Akavik and the Arctic Coast. A general shuffle of superintendents on the western territory follows this division of the Mackenzie district. U. S. Wagner left the Mackenzie district at Whitehorse, succeeded Walter Gilbert as superintendent of the Vancouver division; U. S. Wagner left the central district at Winnipeg, to succeed Ted Field at Whitehorse, and W. E. Catton was promoted from assistant superintendent, Lac du Bonnet, Man., to superintendent at Winnipeg, replacing U. S. Wagner.

Glycerine Substitute

Will Make Millions Of Pounds Available For War Explosives.

Scientists in U.S. department of agriculture's regional experiment station at Philadelphia, started out a year ago to develop a substitute for common table sugar.

They failed—but instead they developed a solution which will free millions of pounds of glycerine annually for use in the manufacture of bombs and other war explosives.

In effect, the solution is a plain syrup, made with apples.

It will be used in tobacco processing—substituting for glycerine, which has been used for years in tobacco manufacture because of its high humidifying qualities.

May Have Been Seven

Historians Say There Were At Least Five Saints Valentine

Lost in the mists of antiquity is the origin of St. Valentine's Day, and the searchings of historians are not aided by the fact that there were at least five Saints Valentine—some say seven. Strangely enough, the lives of these saints give no clue to the reason for naming the day after them, nor any hint as to why the day was chosen for the exchange of tender sentiments.

In the gay 'nineties Valentine cards were of elaborate type—often appearing on lace paper and featuring silks, satins and ribbons, and with mechanical gadgets worked into the scheme. Happily, the cheap and often cruel "comic" valentines of the period have largely passed from the scene.

Today's valentines are often masterpieces of the printer's art, and writers outdo themselves in preparing sentimental messages suitable for the occasion—and how expert they become in choosing the right word. With millions of lace and lilies shifted from home scene by the necessities of war, the demand for valentines this year was greater than ever. It's a pleasant custom, and the growing use of this type of greeting card proves its particular appeal with the young folk.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 28

JESUS RESTORES LAZARUS TO LIFE

Golden text: I am the resurrection, and the life, John 11:25.

Lesson: John 11.

Devotional reading: 1 Peter 1:3-12.

Explanations and Comments

Jesus Learns of Lazarus' Sickness, John 11:1-16. At Bethany there was a household beloved of Jesus.—"Now Jesus loved Martha and her sister, and Lazarus," we are told by John.

When Lazarus fell seriously ill the sisters went to Jesus, believing that if he only knew of their great need of him he would come quickly to them. Beautiful trust was expressed by their message, "He whom thou lovest is sick." They made no claim upon him. They simply laid the matter in his hands. Jesus told his disciples that the sickness was "unto the glory of God; that the Son of God may be glorified thereby."

Recall his words concerning the "father of the blind man," that the works of God should be made manifest in him.

Jesus delayed two days before he started for Bethany. His disciples would have deterred him from going by reminding him that the Jews had been seeking to stone him and it would be dangerous for him to go back. Jesus told them plainly that Lazarus was dead and added: "I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the interest that ye may believe; nevertheless, let us go and bury him."

Then Thomas courageously counseled the others: "Let us also go, that we may die with him."

The Situation in the Home at Bethany, John 11:17-19. When Jesus and the disciples arrived, they found that Lazarus' body had lain in the tomb four days, for burial took place on the day of his death, as is still customary in Palestine. Bethany being near Jerusalem, only five furlongs (three-fourths of a mile) away, many Jews had arrived from the city to join the sisters in their mourning.

Martha's Wonderful Faith in Jesus, John 11:20-27. When the sisters learned that Jesus was approaching, Mary remained in the house with their friends but Martha hastened out of the village to meet him. "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died," she cried, and then with wonderful faith she expressed her belief that Jesus could "even now" restore him to life. "I know that whatsoever thou shalt ask of God, God will give thee," were her words. "Thy brother shall rise again," Jesus returned. She took his words to refer to a far-distant, future resurrection, "the resurrection at the last day; and her belief in that resurrection seems to have given her little comfort, for it was belief, not faith, that she expressed. Belief is a matter of the intellect; faith, a matter of the heart and life. "She was thinking of what concerned the indeterminate mass of men, the world's millions everywhere, instead of looking at what was close at hand and concerned her."

Military Genius

Might Of German Strategy: Has Received A Powerful Jolt

Since the days of the great Clausewitz, the Prussian general who wrote the copy-books for modern military strategists, Germany has been looked upon as the land of military genius. The world spoke in awe of "German thoroughness," of German "capacity for organization."

What has happened to all this "genius" and "thoroughness" in Russia? Here is what was supposed to be the mightiest and best led army in the world reeling back before the Russians; out-generalled, out-manoeuvred, out-fought. Hitler's great generals, with their "supermen" behind them, failed to see that Stalin, sitting back in the Summer and Fall just as the Russians fell back before Napoleon) was preparing a great offensive. They obviously failed to grasp, and were powerless to fend, the complicated and concerted moves by which the Russians surrounded and annihilated them at Stalingrad, and equally in failure they fell into a trap in the Caucasus.

And as in Russia, so in Egypt and Libya. Rommel was hailed as a "genius," dubbed the "fox of the desert." But Rommel was only a "fox of the desert" and a "genius" so long as he had superiority in aeroplanes and tanks and guns; once the odds became equal the British under Montgomery drove him back a thousand miles, turned him into a (Mr. Churchill's words) "a fugitive from Libya."

Maybe this "German military genius" tale is but a myth; one of many myths about Germany.—Ottawa Journal.

Getting Rid Of Property

Regent Of Hungary Taking His Fortune Out Of Country

The London Daily Sketch says Admiral Horthy, Regent of Hungary, is significantly, selling by private treaty a large part of his property in his own country. This is causing much uneasiness in Hungarian political circles, where the deal has become common knowledge.

These circles believe the deal signifies that Horthy is anticipating an end of his regime and is preparing to send the remainder of his fortune out of the country. A large part of his personal fortune is now in the Argentine, as we revealed some time ago.

NECESSITY FOR GOOD VENTILATION

An article entitled "Housing and Health" appearing in a recent edition of "Better Health", official journal of the Central Council for Health Education in Great Britain, calls attention to the necessity for good ventilation in homes as a prerequisite for good health.

Many people, the article declares, sleep with their windows tightly closed, the result being that they breathe stale air throughout the night. A sense of well-being is experienced on entering a well-ventilated room, however, where there is a proper adjustment of air currents with air that is clean, of a suitable temperature and free from dampness. Good ventilation in this sense promotes physical and mental fitness. Too often, states the item, the liver is blamed for that "out-of-sorts" feeling when it should be the ventilation. This is the essential scientific basis for the belief that housing and health are interrelated and that damp, stuffy, dirty, smoky, overcrowded dwellings promote ill-health.

A stuffy atmosphere, it emphasises, leads to congestion of the lining of the nasal and breathing passages. This congestion more readily lends those things for infection by germs in the atmosphere already or sprayed upon one by one's neighbour who sneezes without using a handkerchief.

When you go from a stuffy room into the cold air it is not the cold air that gives you the cold, the influenza, or the pneumonia. The germs of these diseases had already gained a foothold when you were with your companions in the stuffy room.

Overcrowding, says the article, promotes a stuffy atmosphere, rendering it easier for germs to pass from one human being to another. A smoky atmosphere too, contributes to stuffiness, to congestion of the linings of the nose and breathing passages and tends to keep out the ultra violet rays coming from the sun when there is sunshine.

Dampness too is named as being a co-factor with poor ventilation in breaking down health. In itself it promotes ill-ventilation by increasing the vapour concentration in the air of the room or building, so aggravating the diffusion of hot air in carrying off hot, water vapour from the human body.

CHAPTER VIII

MOHAMMED Ibn Mual stood on the crest of a nearby dune, framed against the setting sun, waving one arm and pointing with the other down the far side of the slope high. When he saw that he had attracted their attention, Mohammed darted below the curve of the elevation.

Instantly Storey moved to his feet, raising up the side of the knoll. The camels must have strayed far, or might even be running away. Annette was with him when he topped the rise. And there, Storey teased, his anxiety lessened considerably. The dromedaries were less than a stone's throw to his left, their long teeth cropping the camel-thorns. Mohammed Ibn Mual had paused also, kneeling on the ground and bending down close to the sand.

An exclamation broke from Jack Storey. The smooth, rippled surface of the sand was cut by the imprint of many tiny cloven hoofs.

"The sheep!" cried Annette. "And Ribbott has passed this way!" Her eyes followed the scattered earth, the trail that swept on into the distant east.

"Well, Jacques?" Her dark eyes, triumphant now, returned to Storey. "Do you believe now what I said about Monsieur Ribbott?"

Storey nodded, staring in the direction taken by Ribbott. "But why should he go this way? If he has followed the scattered earth, the trail place he can possibly reach is Ribbott."

"Yes," she inclined her head in turn. "The Lonely Well must be his destination. You see, monsieur? There is no railroad to take the sheep to the armies of Hitler and Mussolini. Isolated Bir Mazouli is visited by neither caravan nor traveler. The who are in the employ of Ribbott. At Bir Mazouli, where no one could get there in water and grazing of sorts for the sheep. From there he can truck them across the desert at his leisure."

"They cannot be far ahead," murmured Mohammed. "Those tracks were made since the end of the storm."

"Let us saddle our dromedaries!" Annette proposed eagerly. "We should overtake them in an hour or two."

"What good would that be?" reasoned Storey. "Ribbott will have armed guards and we three are too few to take the sheep from him. Better plan would be to go to Capt. Lebeau and have him hurry here with his soldiers."

"No!" Annette objected, quickly. "By the time we ride to Ain Saffa and back Ribbott will be at Bir Mazouli, which is in Tripolitania, beyond the jurisdiction of the French."

Storey rubbed his chin while he considered. This statement, that Mohammed will ride alone to Ain Saffa," he decided, "while you and I keep Ribbott in sight. Will that be satisfactory, mademoiselle?"

A voice, that of neither Annette nor Mohammed, said: "You are all going to Bir Mazouli, O Perengh! And a bullet, accompanied by the crack of a rifle, plowed into the sand an inch from the toe of Storey's boot.

THE American whirled. On the knoll above was a mounted man, his finger on the trigger of a rifle leveled over the head of the camel. Immedin! The lawless aid from the high-backed camel saddle and approached the passive American. "Allah is good!" exclaimed the Berber chief. "In spite of the storm, you who looked me in the jail of Sid Lebeau, are delivered into my hands—"

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR LIVER

Back it up right now and feel the million!

Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It pours out bile to digest food, gets rid of waste, supplies new energy, allows proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order food decomposes in your system. You feel constipated, nervous and kidneys can't work properly. You feel "tired", headache, backache, dizziness, and all the time. For over 25 years thousands have been cured of liver trouble by taking Fruit-A-Tives. So can you. Try Fruit-A-Tives. You'll be simply delighted how quickly you'll feel like a new person, happy and healthy.

He placed his heels on the ground, his knees still upturned, and showed himself closer to Ibn Zeld. Such by inch he moved, not unlike a crawling worm, toward the sleeping man. His progress was slow, since he must make no sound that might disturb the guard; also, his arms were beneath his sliding body, and the friction twisted and cramped his arms and muscles.

At length he drew up beside Ibn Zeld. Not an inch separated the two men. Carefully, Storey lifted his legs past the Berber's ear, and thrust them over the drooping head. He turned his ankles in a move that spread his knees until they were about six inches apart. Then, swiftly, he brought his legs down upon the Arab.

The Old Homestead

A 30-Acre Farm Within City Limits Of Cleveland

Cleveland—This city of 1,000,000 boasts a 30-acre farm, with a 100-year-old farmhouse, well within its geographic limits.

The farm is owned and operated by William and Lawrence Boyd, bachelor brothers. The homestead was built by their father to replace the log cabin which he built when he and his bride settled about seven miles outside the little village of Cleveland 120 years ago.

Gradually innovations came about—Cleveland's boundaries stretched out to embrace the farm, horse cars replaced cart and team and finally gave way to buses, but the Boyd farm, though some of its acres were sold, is unchanged.

The Boyds' cousin, Miss Ida Clark, has kept house for them since she came, 40 years ago, to help out when their mother was sick.

Then they have a farm hand, Charles Tyson, who worked for them for 25 years until he went into business, but he came back, two years ago, for a visit.

Seaweed Rocks

Plants Encased In Shell-Like Crust Closely Resemble Coral

We probably are all familiar with the fact that the fossil imprints of plants and animals may be found in rock. Perhaps not so common is the knowledge that seaweeds make rocks. Many seaweeds have a great capacity for extracting limestone from sea water and depositing it as a shell-like crust encasing the plant. Such seaweed rocks are, in some cases, so much like coral as to be mistaken for that substance. Paleontologists have advanced the opinion that many of the massive rocks in the older strata of North America are of seaweed origin.

Visit To Marseille

Is Remembered For Its Famous Fish Soup

Marseille is supposed to be one of the wickedest cities in the world. In normal times it does catch a good deal of the human off-scourings from the seven seas.

It is also a pleasant city of fine, shady boulevards, lined with spacious cafes and luxurious shops. The walk on a sunny day down the Rue Cannebiere and its continuation, the Rue Noailles is one of the most picturesque, colorful and agreeable urban walks in the world. It is a devotedly religious city and its most conspicuous monument is the basilica of Notre Dame de la Garde, situated on a hill rising high above the harbor.

In peacetime it was well fed and its menus offered some dishes not procurable at their best anywhere else in France. One of these was bouillabaisse, a fish stew containing an extraordinary variety of delicious seafood of an inimitable flavor. Pascal's restaurant, in the neighborhood of the Old Port, was famous as the home of the best bouillabaisse below heaven.

The people of Marseille must be missing their bouillabaisse. That may be another reason for their defiant opposition to the Nazis—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Hailed Out

- but John Freeman beats disaster

"I've been hailed out. But I've got an idea," John Freeman sat across the desk from his bank manager in a small prairie town. John's eyes twinkled but his mouth was grim. "Idea's about all I have got!" he added.

The banker knew John, a hard-working, honest, shrewd prairie farmer, a fighter. "Let's have your idea," he said.

"It'll take funds, plenty of funds, and I haven't any, not now!" said John. "But listen." The banker listened.

"I know cattle," said John, when he had finished. "It'll work—if you'll stake me."

The banker staked him. With a considerable loan from the bank, John bought feeder cattle and fattened them on his beaten-down fields. He also bought the ruined crops of several adjoining farms and turned his stock to graze there. And John won his round with misfortune.

Because of the bank's confidence in John Freeman's integrity and judgment, loss was turned to gain. And not only for him. The neighbours got ready cash for crops which otherwise would have been a total loss.

Though this farmer's name was not "John Freeman," the facts in this story are true. It is typical of the thousand ways in which Canada's Chartered Banks aid credit-worthy people in all walks of life to profit from their individual enterprise and industry.

By banking during morning hours you can help the war effort, facilitate your own business, and lighten the wartime burden on the men and women in your branch bank. More than one-third of our experienced men have gone to war.

Look up, Mr. Farmer!

LOOK UP, Mr. Farmer. There they go, on their way—to blast a hole in the ocean where a submarine lurks or maybe to fix a Messerschmidt so it can't get home. Whatever their mission, you've a big hand in it. From the grain you planted and prayed and perspired over came that all-important agent of war—high-proof alcohol. And from that alcohol came the rubber for the tires, the explosives in the bomb racks, the plastic for the shatterproof windshields. You couldn't point to a square foot of those planes that isn't somehow dependent on high-proof alcohol.

When you bend to your plough again, Mr. Farmer, and the furrow starts rolling over, you're helping to bury as vicious an enemy as mankind ever had. For your fields are the starting point for tons of smokeless powder and rubber and other vital supplies which are going to our army, navy and air force all over the world. And you are a prime source of pharmaceuticals which help guard the health of our fighting men and speed their recovery from battle wounds.

It takes an almost countless number of things to win a war, and a great many of them, Mr. Farmer, begin with your grain. You grow it and we'll make it into high-proof alcohol. Together, we'll finish the job Hitler and Co. will wish they hadn't started!

Alcohol for war is used in the manufacture of High Explosives, Synthetic Rubber, Drugs and Medicines, Photographic Film, Lacquers and Varnishes, Drawing Inks, Compasses and other Navigation Instruments, Plastics, Shatterproof Glass and many other products. All the Seagram Plants in Canada and the United States are engaged one hundred per cent in the production of high-proof alcohol for war.
